The Great Juice Spill

Leo was excited for snack time. He had a big glass of grape juice right next to his math homework, which he was just finishing up.

Oops! His elbow bumped the glass, and purple juice splashed all over his worksheet. Numbers blurred, and the paper turned sticky.

Leo grabbed a kitchen towel to quickly blot the mess. But the towel had crumbs and a bit of jam on it, leaving sticky smudges and even more mess on his homework. He tried to rewrite the smudged problems, rushing so he wouldn't miss the bus. In his hurry, he made silly mistakes he wouldn't normally make.

The next day, his teacher, Ms. Lily, looked at his messy, smudged, and incorrect homework. Leo explained what happened. He got a lower grade than usual. Leo learned a valuable lesson: keep drinks far away from important papers!
